4667 Polly Tyler, born March 22, 1839; died in Adams, Ill., December 31, 1896; married, July 4, 1858, Hamilton Young; she had three children, all of whom died young. Her husband was a captain in the Civil War, and lost his life in the service. She went to the front, after his death, and rendered large aid to sick and wounded soldiers. Some stories are told of her beautiful heroism that should give her a lasting place in the history of the war. In 1872 she settled on a claim in the west and began pioneer life. From farming she went to speculating and everything she touched turned into money. She built houses in Wichita, Kan., in the early seventies, which paid her well; she went to Wellington, Kas., with the railroad and erected houses there which she rented well, and from there she went to Caldwell where her success was phenomenal. When Kiowa was started, Mrs. Young arrived on an early train and began to put up business buildings which paid for themselves in a short time. In other western Kansas towns she was a leader in building up the places. She then went to Colorado, where her rare success attended her operations. When she entered a new town she was soon surrounded by a swarm of carpenters and builders. In Oklahoma she started in at Reno City; when El Reno became the rising star she set builders at work there. She was looked upon as a "mascot" in western Kansas, and people invested where she did, because they believed in her "luck." Although she was an eminently successful business woman, she had a sweet and sympathetic disposition and a tender heart.

As a widow, she resided in Richfield. He was second lieutenant in Company F, 118th Ill. Volunteer Infantry, from November, 1862, to October, 1865. Early in life he moved to Illinois, and in the early forties he kept a store near Richfield. He sold out his business, bought a farm and lived there to the end of his life. He was acting-captain at the close of the war, having come to the position through vacancies. He was commissioned as captain by the Governor of Illinois, October 1, 1865, but did not receive the same until he had been mustered out of service. His neighbors and townsmen always gave him the title, however. He was often elected to office in his township, and was three times sent to the Legislature and it is said that he might have been elected again and again if he had not declined the honor. He was a Master Mason. His children were born in Richfield.

Y., born there October 19, 1815. He was named "Edward," but when he went to live with a relative in Billerica, Mr. Alexander Sumner, at the age of ten or twelve, his name was changed at his guardian's request. He went overland to Marietta, O., remaining there a few years. Then he was employed by a lumber company on Grand Island in Niagara river, N. Y. When an insurrection occurred in Canada in 1837, he assisted to raise a company of volunteers of which he was captain, and helped to fortify the Navy Island in Niagara river and to hold it against the Canadian royalists. Later, in Buffalo, he was in the clothing business, thence to New York city and in a year or two to Boston, where he opened a boat store about 1848 on Foster's wharf. In 1850 he went to California, via Cape Horn, and took a number of framed houses ready to erect on arrival. In Sacramento he kept a hotel, and was also a merchant there and in San Francisco, but in 1853 sold out and returned to Boston. Again he went to California in 1855, by way of the Isthmus, but soon returned east as far as Keokuk, Ia., where he kept a hotel and entertained many western emigrants who came in "prairie schooners," etc. He was also an active business man and took part in the Lincoln and Hamlin campaign of 1860, and in 1861 was elected captain of a home company, commanding among others, Samuel F. Miller, future chief-justice, and George W. McCrary, future secretary of war. They sent out heavy details to guard powder magazines and roads leading to Missouri, and had a prominent part in the exciting days which followed. From 1863 to 1870 he went into various kinds of business which the conditions then made profitable and was interested in petroleum. He was a prominent Odd Fellow. He had a stirring, adventurous life, with many successes. In San Francisco he was one of the famous " vigilance committee " and experienced the terror occasioned by numerous earthquakes. He was a passenger in one of the first trains running between San Francisco and Omaha, and was well acquainted with many of the large cities of his day as well as the new regions opening up to settlement.

When Mr. Tyler was thirteen years old he went to work on a farm in Danvers and went to school winters only for the next five years. In 1839 he went to Boston to work for Isaac Osgood, a clothier in Dock Square, who was one of the old-fashioned Boston merchants, a brother of Doctor Samuel Osgood, one of the eminent Unitarian clergymen, of Boston, and young Tyler lived in the family of his employer. At the end of seventeen years Mr. Tyler formed a partnership with a fellow-clerk and started another firm of clothiers in the Tudor building, then on the corner of Court street and Court square. In 1858 Mr. Tyler moved to Newton. With Mrs. Tyler he had joined the Harvard Church in Charlestown (Rev. Dr. George Ellis) in 1856. They now united with the Channing church in Newton and he was deacon and treasurer of the church for ten years, superintendent of the Sunday-school five years, and chairman of the standing committee twelve years. He was a councilman and an alderman, and for over thirty years held many positions of trust and importance in the interests of the city and of benevolence. For thirty-five years he was trustee of the oldest known institution for the care of orphan children in Boston, " The Children's Mission to the Children of the Destitute." In 1866 he moved into a beautiful home in Newton, and in 1869 he adopted legally two young girls. After many years of active business life he retired and spent a winter and summer abroad. He is a strong force for good in his community.

He lived in Griswold, and in Burlington and Detroit, Mich. His desire for college and a professional career was overruled by his parents who desired their only son to be with them at home. He was in the War of 1812 (See Pension Book). He was fond of books and music, was a good singer and a student of science, particularly of geology, a merry companion and a true friend. Though of a Federalist family he was inclined to radicalism. He entered into the anti-masonic and anti-slavery movements. In 1835, appreciating the opportunities offered by the west, he moved to central New York and thence, in 1837, to Michigan. His plans for business were baffled by the financial panic of 1837. In Michigan he was active in aid of fugitive slaves, his own house and a fleet horse ever at their service. One of his sons has collected his letters and in them may be seen abundant proof of his intellectual sympathies, insight, hopefulness, enthusiasm and a quaint humor. He would have made his mark in literature. He was a devout man and faithful to every duty. The four elder children were born in Griswold, the sixth and seventh in Burlington and the two younger in Detroit, Mich.

Y., Caroline Halsey, of Lodi, N. Y. Began his education in the Plainfield Academy, and went into a store at the age of sixteen in Norwich, Conn. His father gave him $500, and he went to New York to seek his fortune. He took passage in a sailing vessel for South America, and after a five months voyage, arrived at Buenos Ayres in 1828; thence he went to Callao and thence to Lima, where he was employed as a bookkeeper by a large English house. In 1834 he became a member of the firm of Sellure, Reed & Company and went to Sierra Pasco to take charge of silver mines; in 1840 he sold out and came back home. The next four years he spent in travel in the United States. In 1845 he drove a team from Connecticut to Michigan and settled on 300 acres in Marengo township, near Marshall. Here he built a nice house surrounded by a fine park; also built tenements and had a fancy farm. In 1857 he met with an accident and sold his farm and removed to Marshall, where he lived until his death. He gave large aid to the cause of the north in the Civil war, and the "Tyler Guards," Captain Crittenden, were named in acknowledgment of this. He was generous to the poor and a man of high moral principles. He was a Republican in politics. His wife was a lady of talent and intellectual abilities.

3907 PROFESSOR WILLIAM SEYMOUR[7] TYLER, D. D., LL. D. (Joab[6]), born in Harford, Susquehanna County, Pa., September 2, 1810; died in Amherst, Mass., November 19, 1897: married, September 4, 1839, Amelia Ogden Whiting, born in Binghamton, N. Y., March 4, 1819; and died in Amherst, Mass., August 4, 1904; daughter of Mason and Mary (Edwards) Whiting. Mason Whiting, a leading early member of the bar in Binghamton, and a prominent abolitionist, was the son of Doctor William Whiting, of Great Barrington, Mass. (an army surgeon in the Revolution, rendering also great service by successful experiments in manufacturing gunpowder), and his wife, Anna Mason, who was descended from the Mayflower pilgrim, Governor William Bradford; Major John Mason, one of the patentees of the royal charter of Connecticut, commander-in-chief of the colonial forces and the hero of the Pequot war; and through Elizabeth St. John, wife of Samuel Whiting, D. D., from the royal families of England, Scotland, Normandy, Spain, and Russia. Mary Edwards was a granddaughter of the Rev. Jonathan Edwards, and was also a descendant of Captain Thomas Willet, first mayor of the city of New York, 1665; thirteen of Mrs. Tyler's New England ancestors were Puritan ministers.

Professor Tyler prepared for college "by snatches as I (or rather my father), could pick up a teacher in the vicinity or hear of one at a distance." In the fall of 1827 Professor Tyler entered Hamilton College in the Junior Class, but owing to dissensions between the faculty and trustees, he left at the end of his first term, as did most of his class. During 1828 he taught in Norwich and Binghamton, New York. His attention was directed to Amherst College and his father took him there in midwinter "in a cutter," and he was admitted in the same standing in which he left Hamilton, the second term of junior year. While in college, he writes: "I boarded at a Club at Mr. Green's, and it never cost me more than seventy-five cents a week." "All the cloth that I wore in college was homespun, made from the wool of sheep raised on the farm, spun in the house, and for the most part by my mother's own hands, woven in a hand-loom, and dyed and dressed in Harford." Although only a year and a half at Amherst, he received the degree of A. B. in the class of 1830, and the Salutatory or second scholarship appointment at commencement. He taught 1830-31 in Amherst Academy the Mathematics and English branches. "It was," he writes, "at Andover Seminary and during my tutorship in college that I came to prefer the department of languages." 1831-32 and 1834-35 he spent at Andover Theological Seminary, and from 1832-34 was a tutor in Amherst College where he boarded in the same family with Miss Mary Lyon, founder of Mt. Holyoke, of which institution he was made a trustee in 1862, and from 1874 to 1894 was the honored president of the board. In 1835-36 Professor Tyler studied in New York under Rev. Thomas H. Skinner, D. D., LL. D., in a class that became the nucleus of the Union Theological Seminary. He was licensed by the Third Presbytery of New York, February 29, 1836. On leaving New York in the spring of 1836, he writes, "it had been my expectation to 'go West,' either as a professor in some western college or as a home missionary," but "I found the roads were in such a state that the stage agents would not undertake to carry me." For a time he was a tutor in Amherst College. In the fall of 1836 he was appointed Professor of Latin and Greek at Amherst College, and in 1847 Samuel Williston Professor of the Greek language and literature, which position he held until he was made Professor Emeritus in 1893, after having been engaged actively as a full professor for fifty-seven years, during the incumbency of five of the college presidents. The Amherst College Obituary Record for 1898 says: "No officer in Amherst College has ever done so much as Professor Tyler for the individual improvement of the students, morally and religiously, and to a great many he has been a spiritual father."

On October 16, 1859, he received ordination at North Amherst. In 1857 Harvard University conferred upon him the degree of D. D., and he was given the degree of LL. D. by Amherst in 1871 and by Columbia in 1887. Harvard University again selected him as one of those to be honored at the celebration of its two hundred and fiftieth anniversary in 1886, conferring upon him the degree of LL. D. It is a singular honor that he should have received from Harvard, although it was not his alma mater, both the degree of D. D. and LL. D. In only two other instances had that university honored one man with both degrees. He twice visited the old world in 1855-56, traveling especially in Italy, Greece, Egypt, and Palestine, and in 1869-70 studying in Athens and Egypt. He was a trustee of the Pittsfield Young Ladies' Institute, founded by his brother Wellington; he prepared the constitution and did much of the work of organizing Williston Seminary, founded by Samuel Williston in 1841; was active in co-operating with Miss Sophia Smith in the founding of Smith College; was many years a trustee, and for a time president of the Board of Trustees of this institution. He was acting president of Amherst College during the latter part of President Seelye's administration.

For years his salary was $500, but in the early days when the college faced financial ruin, he was one of the first to agree with his fellow-teachers to take each year only so much as the college could afford. The Springfield Republican of November 20, 1897, says: "Prof. Tyler had been identified with Amherst College; its life was his life, and he gave as much to its character, its scholarship and its great success in education as any one man, and was indeed the essential representative of its fundamental Christianity and its careful scholarship upon the long-established lines. He was often called 'the Amherst Socrates,' and this indicates his familiar method in the classroom, where his keen inquiry and his shrewd wit and occasional dry humor illuminated many a scholastic examination of texts and hard questions. He was somewhat given to sarcasm, for he was a master of that method of expression; but it never exceeded the reasonable bounds of his teaching. Perhaps there was never a college professor whose personality and individual ways counted for more." Rev. R. S. Storrs, D. D., says of him in the Introductory Note to the History of Amherst College, 1895, "However long the college may continue, however far its influence may reach, and howsoever rich it may become, in accumulating funds, in a generously enlarged physical equipment, in the men who as teachers give it grace and renown, in the fame which shall draw to it students from afar, it may safely be predicted that none will ever have done more to determine its character, to invigorate its life, or to give tone to its widening influence, than did those who were early associated in it as teachers and guides; and it may with equal assurance be added that of all those thus associated none will be remembered with a more affectionate honor than will be given to him who came to the college in his young manhood, and who faithfully wrought in it till fullness of years gave him right to retire." Mr. H. L. Bridgman, one of his students in the class of 1866, said of him: "He aimed to make and did make not only scholars, but men. Greek art and letters were to him but the fruit and the evidence of Greek character, and that not as an intellectual exercise, a printed page or an inscribed tablet, to be studied and literally acquired, but an inspiration to duty, manhood and clear-eyed progress." Rev. C. R. Bruce, Amherst '79, says of him: "What Arnold was to Rugby, Tyler was to Amherst, both in mental and spiritual influence. He will continue to live in the multitude he has inspired to a stronger, better life, and this shall be the truest monument to his memory."

Dr. Tyler was a frequent contributor to current periodicals, and wrote numerous articles for encyclopedias. Many of his occasional discourses and memorial addresses were also published. In addition to these his published books are:

The Germania and Agricola of Caius Cornelius Tacitus, with life of Tacitus, introductions and notes; Editions of 1847, 1852, 1878; The Histories of Caius Cornelius Tacitus, with introductions and notes for colleges, 1849, 1851; Plutarch on the Delay of the Deity, etc., 1867; The Theology of the Greek Poets, 1867; Plato's Apology and Crito, with notes, 1859, 1873; The De Corona of Demosthenes, 1874, 1876, three editions; The Phillippiacs and Olynthiacs of Demosthenes, 1875; The Iliad of Homer, Books XVI-XXIV, with explanatory notes, 1886; History of Amherst College during its first half-century, 1873; History of Amherst College during the administrations of its first five Presidents, 1895; Prayer for Colleges (a premium essay), 1854, 1877; Memoir of Rev. Henry Lobdell, M. D., missionary to Assyria, 1859.

The children were born in Amherst. Children:

6313+ Mason Whiting Tyler, born June 17, 1840.
6314+ William Wellington Tyler, born Oct. 14, 1841.
6315+ Henry Mather Tyler, born Nov. 18, 1843.
6316 George Seymour Tyler, born Jan. 24, 1850; died Feb. 7, 1850.
6317+ John Mason Tyler, born May 18, 1851.

3908 WELLINGTON HART[7] TYLER (Joab[6]), born in Harford, Susquehanna County, Pa., October 14, 1812; died in Labrador, August 19, 1863; buried in Pittsfield; married, March 8, 1838, Caroline Eliza Carpenter, born August 21, 1809; died September 8, 1873; daughter of John Carpenter, of Hoosick, N. Y. He entered college at the junior year in 1829 and was graduated from Amherst A. B. 1831, A. M. 1834. He spent three years in studying theology chiefly at Andover, and was licensed to preach by the Hampshire association in 1839. He intended to become a minister and preached a few months in Hadley, Mass., but a throat difficulty compelled him to desist. He devoted full twenty years to the work of teaching. He was teacher in Mercer County, Ky., 1832-1834; tutor at Amherst College, 1834-1836; was principal for a time of an academy in Manlius, N. Y., and principal of the South Carolina Female Collegiate Institute, Columbia, S. C.; then he founded the Pittsfield Young Ladies' Institute, and was its principal and proprietor twelve years and a half, and which under his administration became one of the most successful of the female seminaries in New England; he left on account of impaired health; afterward, for the year 1862 he was principal of the Cincinnati Female Seminary at Cincinnati, O. He then went to reside in New York; he joined a company of gentlemen in the summer of 1863 in an excursion to Labrador on account of ill health and was benefited on the voyage out; but at the furthest point of the excursion, and just as they were returning, he suddenly died. Mr. Tyler proved himself to be always equal to great undertakings and to every emergency. His influence is felt all over the land in the lives of the cultivated women whom he educated. He performed a leading part in the efforts which have resulted in giving larger breadth and depth to female education, in reducing it to unity, system, and adaptation to the wants of woman in society. As his school became popular, he invested his increasing income in improvements till, as the creation of his individual energy, the institution became collegiate in all its appointments. Says Rev. John Todd, D. D.: "Many men have indomitable energy to execute; some have far-reaching sagacity to contrive. In him they were wonderfully blended. You were never surprised, to hear of a plan far in advance of all others, and you were sure that whatever obstacles were to meet it, they would be overcome. . . . For conscious power, creating hopefulness and action, I have never yet seen the man to be compared to him. . . . He wore in his face, showed in his style, and evinced in his life, a rare combination of qualities." The children were born in Pittsfield.

Children:

6318 William Carpenter Tyler, born March 18, 1839; died Aug., 1840.

6319+ Arthur Wellington Tyler, born March 14, 1842; died March 27, 1906.

6320+ Caroline Carpenter Tyler, born Feb. 15, 1844.

6321 Anna Howard Tyler, born May 20, 1846; lives in Plainfield, N. J.; unmarried.

3909 EDWARD GRISWOLD[7] TYLER (Joab[6]), born in Harford, Susquehanna County, Pa., July 23, 1816; son of Joab and Nabby (Seymour) Tyler; died of pneumonia, April 21, 1891; married, October 1, 1844, Mary M. Carpenter, born February 1, 1825; died January 29, 1899; daughter of Hon. Morgan Carpenter, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. He entered the freshman class of Amherst College in 1834 and maintained a standing as a scholar scarcely second to any; on account of ill health, in the second term of his sophomore year, he left college for three years, which he spent on his father's farm in Pennsylvania. Returning to college in 1839 he entered the junior class and was graduated A. B. in 1841 with the salutatory oration as his appointment at Commencement. In 1844, when his class received the degree of A. M., he delivered a "Master's Oration." Immediately after his graduation, he entered on his life-work as a teacher, beginning in the Young Ladies' Institute at Pittsfield, where he was associate principal from 1841-1845; was principal of Pittsfield Gymnasium or Boys' Boarding School, 1845-1848; principal and proprietor of Ontario Female Seminary, Canandaigua, N. Y., 1848-1861; on account of ill health he gave up teaching and engaged in business, mainly in real estate and banking, first as vice-president of the First National Bank of Canandaigua from 1864-1872, then as president after 1872. He was pre-eminently a scholar and a teacher, and his influence has always been in support of the soundest learning and the most thorough instruction, and he was especially interested in the religious education of our youth. See History of the Brigham Family); Dr. Brigham married (2), Agnes Ruth Walker, daughter of Ephraim Walker, and they had a family of four daughters and a son, who died in infancy. Dr. Brigham was graduated from Woodstock Vermont Medical College in 1845, and later took a course in the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York City. He settled in Montpelier, Vt., where for a quarter of a century was a large practitioner. He was converted to the theory of Homeopathy, and was one of five founders of the Vermont Homeopathic Medical Society of which he was president. In 1875 he moved to Grand Rapids, Mich., where he was the leading Homeopathic physician in the city at the time of his death. He was a charter member of the Michigan Hahnemannian Society, of which he was president; was a member of the American Institute of Homeopaths and of the International Hahnemannian Association. He published medical works on consumption and catarrh. He lectured a great deal and contributed to periodicals. The burials of this family are in the Green Mountain Cemetery, Montpelier. Laura Elvira Tyler was the eldest born daughter and the first child of her parents who lived to maturity. She was fair and bright, with golden hair in abundance, and grew up the pride and favorite of the rural district, the scene of her nativity. Not stout and robust, like most of the Tylers, but naturally delicate and very sensitive, the cares of life proved untimely heavy to her. Before she had reached the half-way stone she was relieved of burdens too onerous for her. Out of devotion to her memory her youngest son began the work of preparing this genealogy. He too laid down burdens too heavy for him ere he had lived to reach the age which his mother attained; but he devoted the last ounces of strength given him to preparing this wreath of immortelles to lay upon her grave.

The two elder children were born in Warren, Vt., the next two in Waitsfield, and the youngest in Montpelier, Vt.

5225 MAJOR LOREN SUMNER[8] TYLER (Alexander Sumner[7]), born in Boston, Mass., April 21, 1845; married (1), in Albany, N. Y., October 17, 1882, Mrs. Lydia

Marshall (Tyler) Carter, of Salem, Mass., No. 5217; died in Salem, December 20 1902; buried in Greenlawn Cemetery; she was a most lovable woman and a devoted friend to all who were in distress; married (2), in Minneapolis, Minn., December 27, 1905, Georgia Wilkins Dutton, born in Littleton, N. H. When the war broke out, Major Tyler, although under age, enlisted as a drummer in Company H, 15th Ia. Infantry, December 21, 1861, his home being Keokuk, and was discharged December 31, 1863, in Vicksburg, Miss., re-enlisting as a veteran in the same company; was mustered out July 24, 1865, and discharged August 4, 1865. His regiment (with others) was formed into Crocker's Iowa brigade, and was the only brigade organization which held its regiments together all through the war. Major Tyler was in all the battles, etc., in which it was engaged, from Shiloh, Tenn., in 1862, to Bentonville, N. C. Was with the Army of the Tennessee and under fire eighty-one days out of the eighty-nine of the Atlanta campaign in 1865. He was on the march to Atlanta and the sea and on duty in the adjutant's office as headquarter's clerk. In 1866, he went to Kansas City, Mo., and there engaged in chair manufacturing. In 1870 he returned to Keokuk and entered into partnership with his father, in the furniture trade. From 1875 to 1884 he was the junior member of the firm of Brown & Tyler, auction and commission merchants. He was commissioned a major in the militia in 1878 and has held several high positions. In 1885, on Major Tyler's motion, the 15th Iowa Veteran Infantry Association was organized. Major Tyler, one of the three historians of the regiment, compiled the regimental history at the request of his confrères, and was highly complimented by General W. W. Belknap. In 1887 Major Tyler made his home in Salem, Mass. He collected portraits of the 92 officers who served in his regiment during the war, and completed a collection of portraits of all Iowans who attained the rank of lieutenant-colonel, colonel and general —about three hundred in all. It is the most complete collection in existence. In July, 1903, he again returned to Keokuk, which has since been his home. He has been a well-known attendant at all the National encampments of the G. A. R. The winter of 1905-1906 he spent in California with Mrs. Tyler; they were at the Hotel Netherlands in San Francisco, April 18, 1906, and were suddenly awakened at 5.14 A. M.

by the great earthquake. Hurrying out to the streets, they went that morning into three cafés and before being able to get even a cup of coffee were ordered out of them, as several large fires were close at hand. At noon an artilleryman with drawn revolver rode up to the Netherlands and ordered every one to move out, as the block was soon to be blown up. With other guests, Major and Mrs. Tyler walked several miles, and for two nights slept out on the vacant sand lots, with occasional cinders and embers falling all over and around them; the air was full of heat, smoke and fine ashes from the miles of burning buildings all over the city. On the 20th, they found the Netherlands a mass of ruins. That night Major Tyler succeeded in getting across the bay to Oakland. Soon after they left for their home in Keokuk. Major Tyler greatly assisted Mr. Brigham in his prepartion for the Tyler genealogy, at the cost of time and money, which he cheerfully gave, and as he himself says, "I took a lot of pride in helping him." He has no children.

eral of the earliest and most conspicuous families of Connecticut. He was graduated from Yale College in 1857, and there began a course in theology which he concluded in Andover Theological Seminary. He preached for a few months in Owego, N. Y., and was pastor of a Congregational church in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., from 1860 to 1862. He went abroad for health, and returning in 1866 was called to the chair of English literature at the University of Michigan, where he remained until 1881, when he took the professorship of American History at Cornell University. In 1881 he entered the Protestant Episcopal church. His published writings are as follows: Brawnville Papers, 1869; History of American Literature During the Colonial Time, in two volumes, 1878; Manual of English Literature, 1879; Life of Patrick Henry, 1887; Three Men of Letters, 1895; Literary History of the American Revolution, two volumes, 1897; Glimpses of England, 1898. He has been a contributor to contemporary literature, and especially to The Independent and The Nation. In 1896 he declined a call to the head of Yale's English department. The Literary Digest, at the time of his death, called him "The leading historian of American Literature." It is said that if he had lived a few days longer, he would have been elected president of the American Historical Society, of which he was the founder. In the early days of The Christian Union, he was the literary editor. "Whether in the pulpit, in his responsible chair of the faculty, or writing with that delightful simplicity of style of which he was a master, he was guided by a lofty and unerring sense of duty, speaking with the aid of profound knowledge and exhaustive research. To sit under his teachings was an inspiration to the best that can be made of life." At the meeting of the Tyler family in Andover, Mass., in 1896, Professor Tyler was elected president of the Association. Degree LL. D. Wooster University, 1875; L.H. D. Columbia University, 1888.

6313 COLONEL MASON WHITING[8] TYLER (William Seymour[7]), born in Amherst, Mass., June 17, 1840; died in New York City, July 2, 1907; married, December 29, 1869, Eliza Margaret Schroeder of New Milford, Conn., born in New York City, February 8, 1834; died in Plainfield, N. J., October 14, 1906; daughter of Rev. John Frederick Schroeder, D. D., an able and learned minister of Trinity Parish, New York City. Mrs. Tyler's mother was Caroline Maria Boardman; daughter of Hon. Elijah Boardman, of New Milford, Conn. (a Revolutionary soldier and United States senator; he was grandson of Rev. Daniel Boardman, one of the earliest graduates of Yale College, and the first minister of New Milford. Mrs. Elijah Boardman was Mary Anna Whiting, sister of Mason Whiting, whose noted ancestry has been mentioned under the title of Professor W. S. Tyler).

Colonel Tyler prepared for college at Amherst Academy and at Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass. He entered Amherst College in 1858, where he was a member of the Psi Upsilon fraternity, to which his father, his three brothers, and his two sons have also belonged, and in which he always took the greatest interest, being prominent in its councils, and earnestly active in its welfare. In scholarship he stood well. He was Commencement orator, and a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society. From 1860 to 1862 he was also class president. On July 10, 1862, he was graduated with the degree of A. B., and three years later received the degree of A. M.

Immediately on graduating, July 30, 1862, he entered military service in the Civil War, and was mustered as second lieutenant 36th Mass. Volunteers. On August 13, 1862, as first lieutenant, he was transferred with the company which he had recruited and which became Company F, to the 37th Mass. Volunteers. With this regiment he served with distinction until the end of the war. This regiment was attached to the Sixth Army Corps, then in the Army of the Potomac, which was detached to serve under Sheridan in the Shenandoah Valley. He was commissioned captain in this regiment January 17, 1863; brevetted major of U. S. Volunteers, September 19, 1864, for distinguished gallantry in the Battle of Winchester, Va.; made major of the regiment, March 4, 1865, commissioned by the Governor as its lieutenant-colonel, May 4, 1865, and as its colonel, June 26, 1865, but could not be remustered, although in command of the regiment because the losses had depleted the ranks below the numbers required by the U. S. Government for those appointments. He was mustered out and honorably discharged, July 1, 1865. He took part in the following engagements; operations of Fredericksburg, December 11 to 14, 1862; Burnside's "Mud Campaign," January 20 to 23, 1863; second Fredericksburg and Marye's Heights, May 2 and 3, 1863; Salem Church, May 3 and 4, 1863; Gettysburg, July 2 and 3; Funkstown, July 11; Rappahannock Station, November 8; Mine Run, November 29; Wilderness, May 5 to 9, 1864; Spottsylvania, May 12 to 18, 1864; North Anna, May 24 and 25; Cold Harbor, June 2 to 4; Petersburg, June 15 to 19; Weldon Railroad, June 21; Reams Station, June 29; Fort Stevens, July 11 and 12; Charlestown, August 21; Opequan, September 19; Cedar Creek, October 19; Hatcher's Run, February 6, 1865; Dabney's Mills, February 7; Forts Stedman and Wadsworth, March 25, 1865. These with several skirmishes numbered thirty in all.

Colonel Tyler's regiment had an enrollment of 1324 men, and lost 588 killed or wounded and 169 killed or died of wounds (12.7%). It was one of the Three Hundred fighting Regiments enumerated in Colonel Fox's Regimental Losses in the American Civil War. Colonel Fox names twelve battles as the bloodiest of the war. Colonel Tyler was engaged in seven of these twelve. He was wounded in the chin September 19, 1864, and March 26, 1865, in the right knee. He served on General Neill's staff from May 15 to June 30, 1864, and was Provost Marshall at Winchester, Va., from September 19 to December 18, 1864. His regiment was the first to arrive in New York City to quell the draft riots.

At the Battle of Spottsylvania Colonel Tyler's regiment supported the salient of the Bloody Angle twenty-two consecutive hours during which time "all Grant's toilers in the ditch were relieved except the 37th Massachusetts" (Massachusetts Historical Society, Military History of the War, Vol. 4, p. 66). Fifty volunteers were called for to "rush inside the angle and drive the enemy from the traverses." Colonel Tyler volunteered to lead the party, but the order was countermanded just as the assault was starting. In the Russo-Japanese War such parties were frequent and were regarded as details for death. So, in this instance, it was considered by every man who volunteered.

Colonel Tyler studied law in Columbia College Law School 1865-1866; was admitted to the bar in 1866, after which he practiced three years in the law office of Evarts, Southmaid and Choate. In 1869, he formed a partnership with General Henry Edwin Tremain, under the firm name of Tremain & Tyler. In 1893 he formed a new partnership under the name of Tyler and Durand, and in 1903 that of Tyler & Tyler, consisting of himself and his two sons, William S. and Cornelius B.

He conducted many important cases, one of the most famous of which was the suit of Marie vs. Garrison, resulting in the recovery of over a million dollars. Tremain and Tyler were attorneys for the importers in the famous "hat trimmings" cases—Hartranft vs. Langfeld (125 U. S. 128); Robertson vs. Edelhoff (132 U. S. 614); Cadwalader vs. Wanamaker (149 U. S. 532); Walker vs. Seeberger (149 U. S. 541), and Hartranft vs. Meyer (149 U. S. 544), resulting in the recovery by his firm of several million dollars from the government. They were the counsel in the sugar importation cases, Whitney vs. Robertson (124 U. S. 190). He was also prominent in the Removal Cases (100 U. S. 457), and as counsel in Pacific Railroad vs. Ketchum (101 U. S. 289). He was connected with important business enterprises. He was president of the Cumberland Coal and Iron Company, and director of the Columbus and Hocking Coal and Iron Company. He was many years director and vice-president of the Rossendale, Reddaway Belting and Hose Company. But he was most active in public enterprises and benevolences, particularly in Plainfield, N. J., where he made his home from 1870 until his death in 1907. He was instrumental in founding the Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room in 1880, the second to be founded in the State of New Jersey, and of this he was president until his death. He was promoter and first president of the Organized Aid Association of Plainfield and North Plainfield. He was also one of the early trustees of the Muhlenberg Hospital, president of the Music Hall Association, and president of the Anti-Racetrack Association of New Jersey. No matter of public interest in Plainfield, where he resided went without his support. He was also one of the trustees of Amherst College. His former law partner, General Tremain, says of him:

"His was one of those rare natures who, in business or in social life radiates the benevolences of humanity and goodness and peace, that dispel the shadows of evil. He was a patriot-soldier, an honored citizen, a beloved husband and father."

He was a member of the society of the Mayflower Descendants in New York and New Jersey and governor of the New Jersey society, and of the societies of the Sons of the Revolution, Colonial Wars, and Colonial Governors, and a member of the N. Y. Commandery of the Loyal Legion, and numerous other societies and clubs. The children were born in Plainfield.

6319 ARTHUR WELLINGTON[8] TYLER (Wellington Hart[7]), born in Pittsfield, Mass., March 14, 1842; died March, 1906, of pneumonia. He was graduated from Amherst College A. B. 1867; he then engaged in journalism in

New York City until 1870, then was editor of a newspaper in Meadville, Pa., for one year; he was assistant librarian at Astor Library, New York City, 1871-1876, and second librarian there in 1876. He was first librarian at Johns Hopkins University until 1879; in that year he was elected librarian of the public library at Indianapolis, Ind., and for four years was in charge of an institution doing the seventh largest work of any public library in America. From 1883-1885 he was engaged in cataloguing and classifying in the state library at Topeka, Kan., and the State University Library at Lawrence, Kan. In the fall of 1885 he took charge of the organization work of the public library in Plainfield, N. J., and in two years started it on a very successful career. In 1888, in the formation period of what is now Teachers' College, New York City, he was the first Dean of the faculty, and had charge of the executive work during the absence of the president in Europe. The next four years he spent in Quincy, Ill., developing an old subscription library into a free library. In 1893, after six months of special cataloguing of sixteenth and seventeenth century pamphlets at Columbia University, New York, he was employed at Wilmington, Del., in doing a work similar to that which he had recently completed in Quincy. In the fall of 1895 he organized from its foundation the public library of Branford, Conn., which had an endowment of $700,000, and continued to be its librarian until 1898. After traveling extensively in Europe he was assistant librarian of the new public library in Washington, D. C. (whose building was the gift of Andrew Carnegie), from 1902 until a short time before his death. Mr. Tyler was a devoted Bible student, and was particularly learned in the literature relating to the ancient codices of the Scriptures. He frequently delivered lectures on this subject. In 1871 and 1873 he did some important work upon the text of the Greek testament, the results of which were published in several numbers of the Bibliotheca Sacra, and were received with marks of strong commendation by literary newspapers in England as well as in America. "He was a fine Greek scholar, indirectly assisted the New Testament revisers, and published a book on Studies in the Greek Testament. For nearly forty years he had been a quiet but faithful and useful worker in the service of libraries and Christian scholarship." Mr. Tyler was unmarried.

6320 CAROLINE CARPENTER[8] TYLER (Wellington Hart[7]), born in Pittsfield, Mass., February 15, 1844; married, August 24, 1869, Rufus Pratt Lincoln, M. 7154 WILLARD IRVING TYLER[9] BRIGHAM (Laura E.[8]), born in Montpelier, Vt., May 31, 1859; died s. p. in Auburn, Cal., September 26, 1904; married, March 22, 1893, M. Hazel Morse, born in Concord, Vt., who married after his death, her cousin, Edwin E. Nelson, and resides in Texas. Willard was a natural leader in the local grammar school, and class orator of Grand Rapids, Mich., High School, 1878. He taught a year, then entered the University of Michigan, class of 1883; elected Freshman historian, principal contributor to the Sophomore Oracle, corresponding secretary Alpha Delta Phi; for his excellence in Greek and Natural History was advised by the professor of each to adopt that branch of teaching for his life work. Leaving college through ill health, he studied law in Grand Rapids, also, a year with the leading practitioner of Petosky, Mich., where, for services rendered the Pottowatomie Indians, he was adopted by the tribe under the name of "Kenoshaus" (Pickerel, big-mouth—hence orator).

Long a student of Shakespeare and excelling as a reader and amateur actor, he now accepted a flattering offer from Thomas Keene, the tragedian. The next five years were spent in touring the United States with such eminent players as Booth, Barrett, Sheridan, Haworth, Marie Prescott, and under "the Frohmans." He became a B. P. O. E. and a recognized "leading heavy," with bright prospects; but finding the life too exacting for his nervous type, he returned to practice at Grand Rapids, incidentally writing the chapter " Bench and Bar," for Baxter's History of Grand Rapids. In 1890 he removed to Minneapolis, where he continued in the law, and was a chief assistant in the preparation of Judge Atwater's excellent history of that city. He removed to Chicago in 1893 and continued there until 1901, when ill health sent him to Phoenix, Ariz. During this period he was attorney for the state board of dental examiners and interested also in important cases, one being a division suit among minors of the real estate of his deceased father, valued at $100,000. He went to Auburn in September, 1904.

He was descended from eighty different immigrants to America, among the earliest being Richard Warren, 1620, on the Mayflower; Robert Bartlett, 1623, on the Ann; Governor Simon Bradstreet, Governor Thomas Dudley, 1630, Cambridge, Mass.; Thomas Brigham, 1635, on the Susan and Ellen; Job Tyler, Rhode Island, 1638, Andover, 1640; Edmund Rice, Sudbury, 1638; the latest dates noted being those of George Geer, New London, Conn., 1651; Walter Taylor, Amesbury, 1659; and Francis Davis, Amesbury, 1673. Of the other immigrants from whom he was descended, a few may be named: Robert Allyn, Walter Allen, Thomas Brown, Aquila Chase, David Fiske, Jacob Farrar, Edward Garfield, Thomas Hatch, George Haywood, Robert Jennison, Thomas Loring, Simeon Mills, John Prescott, Samuel Ryder, William Simonds, Henry Tewksbury, Ralph Wheelock, John Whitcomb, Dr. Thomas Wells, John Webster, Edward Woodman, etc. It will thus be noted that he was descended from a large number of the important men of the earliest colonial days. He had two lines of descent from Thomas Brigham, the immigrant, of 1635—through Thomas^2 on his father's side, and through John^2 on his mother side.

He interested the Tyler family to form a family association, which first met in North Andover, Mass., September 2, 1896. Other meetings followed,—New Haven, Conn., August 25, 1897; Boston, Mass., September 7, 1898; Washington, D. C., September 13, 1899; Philadelphia, Pa., September 12, 1900, all arranged and carried through with consummate skill by Mr. Brigham, who was the secretary and historian of this organization. Meanwhile, he was gathering Tyler records as fast as possible for the purpose of publication.

In 1893, he became the historian of the Brigham Family Association, formed that year, and he served this organization faithfully in this capacity until 1900, when he was made its secretary-historian. He published a report of seven meetings, replete with historical matter involving years of labor and invaluable to the family. In 1901 he was formally engaged to write The History of the Brigham Family, and was aided to some extent by records already gathered in considerable quantity. Scarcely had the arrangements for this work been completed, when Willard had occasion to go to a physician one day in Chicago, and to his utter consternation he was told he must leave Chicago at once and go to the far south-west and stay there indefinitely. His wife was told that he was a doomed man, but this he did not know. Leave Chicago! Think what that meant to him! There he had certain sure sources of income. He was a lawyer, with a special genius in certain lines of his profession, which was recognized by his brother lawyers, and it was an easy matter for him to earn good money for a comparatively small expenditure of time. He was attorney for a corporation; he was employed by a publishing house as a writer of biographies for a number of years. His father had said of him that Willard's talents would always procure him a competency, and acting upon this idea, the old doctor, leaving about a hundred thousand dollars, and having a second wife and young daughters, settled the fortune upon them. Like a brave fellow he settled his father's estate for the heirs, and went back cheerfully to his own business. When he went into exile, he had the Tyler genealogy well advanced and he carried, with his burden of ill health, material for completing two large family histories. With but small means the outlook was anything but cheerful. His faithful wife disposed of their effects in Chicago, and followed him. Mrs. Brigham had a genius for finding a silver lining to her clouds. She looked about her in Arizona—and promptly set up a chicken yard. Picture him now, if you can, with two histories on his hands, on each of which money had been pledged and paid, dependent on the small and irregularly paid income from the Brigham work, such sums as interested Tylers might advance him, and—his wife's chicken yard. If you know anything of the constant small demands on the pocketbook in genealogical work, you will recognize that it was something like the old tale of bricks without straw. Had health been given him, and life spared, think not but that every obligation he had made would have been met. Willard Irving Tyler Brigham was a high-minded, honorable man—but misfortune came to him from out of a clear sky, in a form which it was impossible for him to foresee or to provide against, and it found him at a point in his work where he needed health and a prolongation of life to fullfil the obligations resting upon him. He did the best he could. No one conversant with all the circumstances can doubt this. How bravely he battled for life that he might finish his noble tasks can never be sufficiently known to his kinsmen. His editors marvel at his erudition and industry. He toured New England and New York State on his bicycle more than once, going to large and small places for records. One summer he traveled in this way more than two thousand miles. The summer of 1900 he spent in Great Britain and France in researches. In fact, he contracted the disease from which he died in the damp stone buildings of London, searching for Tyler origins. The pathetic story of the later days of his life, when he kept at his work while struggling with the treacherous disease which conquered his brave spirit at last, is known to but few. With joy he recognized that the early symptoms of his disease disappeared under the influences of good care and climate; but with equal sorrow and depression he found that the attack was begun in another part of his system, and learned, at last, that hope must be given up. Not the least of his burdens at this time was that relating to the obligations he had incurred in the course of this work which had been so sadly hampered. The Tyler genealogy, begun that he might honor his mother's memory, was his undoing, but he made a brave fight, and what he completed was well done. Mr. Brigham was a member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, Southern History Association, Society of Colonial Wars, Sons of the Revolution, British Record Society; also corresponding member of the New Hampshire and Maine Historical societies. His record as a genealogist rests on the two histories of the Tyler and Brigham families which he left ready for compilation, and the excellent work he did places him in the front rank.
